

News to "Accent" your stitches

June 27, 2008

I'M BACK—AND YOU DIDN'T EVEN KNOW I WAS GONE!

I was out of the shop more than I was in it during June. I went to the annual TNNA Summer tradeshow. While there, I spent a significant amount of time working with knowledgeable sources on revising the Accents web site. I had begun the planning during our January Tradeshow where I took a number of classes learning what I needed to know so that I can move forward intelligently. If I learned my lessons well, you will see the results on the Accents website before this year is over.

I also spent some time shopping for new items and visiting with shop owner and designer friends. If it were not for my interactions with those friends and with you who come into the shop, I fear I would have no desire to remain focused on staying the course during these challenging economic times. The idea of staying home and stitching is so very appealing!

Then I spent a week at home babysitting workers as we renovate our kitchen. Presently I have a new floor, new appliances and new cabinets waiting for installation in July.

Last weekend found me at Camp Stitch Away, where we gathered to stitch and rejuvenate with the beauty of the colors of our fabrics and fibers and the texture of our stitches and embellishments.

ACCENTS 22ND ANNUAL SIDEWALK SALE

Our printed newsletter was mailed out this week and I trust that it has arrived in your mailbox, or will arrive very shortly. We'll be shopping rain or shine, as Mr. Roo's has given us permission to use their space since they are closed on Sundays. This year we'll be accepting payment by cash, check or credit card, though cash would be preferred. We've also heard your request for early admission, so we have added an Early Bird event and an end of the day Final Auction Clearance event. Mark your calendar. You'll find lots of bargains.

ACCENTS AWEIGH STITCHER'S CRUISE

Another update on the cruise. We have 27 stitchers signed up along with 8 guests. The cabin fees on the ship have increased since our booking. If you thought about attending, you may want to call our booking agent ASAP—while we still have 2 inside cabins left at the original cost.
